FACULTY & ADMINISTRATION

To the Class of 1998,

Your graduation from The Sacred Heart School of Montreal represents a significant transition in your lives. The goals you set for yourselves for your secondary school years have either been met or remain as hopes for the future. At the same time, you enter into new beginnings which hold promise and fresh challenges for you. Your Sacred Heart education has offered you the tools for success; may you welcome new opportunities to learn, to lead, to serve, to grow in every facet of your being.

As you leave Sacred Heart, know that you take with you a rich tradition. Just as you are, at this point, happy to move on, so do I hope you will always be happy to return. Sacred Heart will welcome you and will celebrate with you your achievements in the future.

My wish for you is that you will be your best selves, that you will have the courage to live according to your deepest convictions; that those convictions will be founded in goodness and integrity. May you experience joy in your innermost being, and may you be blessed in both giving and receiving love.

C.M the 4 of us in 1 room was an accident waiting to happen. Enough memories made to last a life time. Growing up with such great friends was great, most of the time. MP and TN going to Mtl. north took us 4 hours and then the 3 hour dinner. C.H are you sure this is the entrance door, quick 911 on redial. Lara give back the cookie. Many thanks to all my teachers esp.to the wisest of all my teachers mom, dad, Fi, Chrs and SAM. Grads of '98 hope our paths cross again.

MALIESHA THYRIAR Five years have gone by so quickly, & it seems as though yesterday was not so far away. Faces and places have made my days in SHSM, an unforgettable memory that will always linger in my heart. I cannot say that I have made it all by myself but with the help of teachers, friends, family, and even acquaintances, I love you all (without you, none of this could be possible) First & foremost, I'd like to thank GOD, then my family- MOMMY, DADDY, RAJESH, & KASANDRA, for always encouraging me to pursue my ambitions. My friends, you know who you are, DIANA, my best bud, thanks 4 always being there by my side especially through the hard times. LILLIAN & SUZY, you've always had a smile, and made me realise the importance of being positive. My Guru, Mrs. Krishnan, My Grandma Mable, & Jane, aunts & uncles, tones of cousins out there, you have motivated me to be who I am, & not someone else. # RETREATS

SECONDARY I RETREAT

OUR RETREAT, AT THE BEGINNING OF THE SCHOOL YEAR, WAS ONE OF OUR FIRST AND MOST MEMORABLE MOMENTS. WE STARTED OFF BY WATCHING A MOVIE CALLED "THE AIR UP THERE." IT WAS A VERY GOOD MOVIE THAT TAUGHT US ABOUT TEAM WORK AND RESPECTING OTHER PEOPLE. WE THEN ENJOYED OUR LUNCH.

DURING THE AFTERNOON, WE PLAYED OUTSIDE ON THE PLAYGROUND NEAR A LAKE. A LITTLE LATER ON, WE GATHERED INSIDE AND COLOURED PICTURES OF OURSELVES IN OUR UNIFORMS. WE GLUED THEM ONTO A POSTER THAT WE WILL ALL SEE AGAIN ON OUR GRADUATION DAY. THEN WE ALL SANG SONGS BEFORE WE LEFT FOR SCHOOL.

OUR RETREAT WAS A GREAT EXPERIENCE AND ALL OF US ARE ANXIOUS FOR THE NEXT ONES TO COME.

SECONDARY II HAD A SUPER TIME ON THEIR RETREAT, LEARNING, LIVING, AND LAUGHING TOGETHER.

SECONDARY 999 RETREAT

SECONDARY V RETREAT

Despite a slight delay do to the ice storm, the Secondary V class enjoyed a memorable overnight retreat at the Saint-Jerome retreat house. We appreciated the opportunity to reflect on our shared experiences throughout our high school years, and on the "power of one" which has developed in each of us. As we laughed and cried, we began to look toward the days and years that lie ahead.

The Goddess in Red

By: Jenifer Nguyen, Secondary V

He was a rich man born into a middle class family. Well-reputed for his infamous dinner parties, Charles Shaugnessy was certainly a man of mystery.

Despite the fact that at the mere mention of the name "Charles Shaugnessy", heads would turn and tongues would wag, no one could actually boast to knowing anything substantial about Charles. No one but I. No one but I could accurately describe his numerous mannerisms, his favourite brand of cigars, or his slight, barely detectable Yankee accent that suggested that Charles was not a man of British descent, as he often let on.

I had never understood why in the ten years that I had known him, Charles had never married, or even shown a remote interest in women. I convinced myself that a previous relationship had caused him to swear off members of the opposite sex forever. How then, could I possibly explain the reason for which Charles' normally unreadable expression seemed to light up at the mere sight of a woman in a red dress? How then, could I explain Charles' undying passion for daisies, which only a woman's touch could have spurred?

As it happened, all of my questions were answered at one of Charles' infamous garden parties. Instead of standing at the front door to greet the large influx of guests that seemed to float in and out of the house at an amazing speed as an ordinary host would, Charles positioned himself at his customary spot—under the tree that stood at a fair distance from the heart of the party. This post lent itself to a perfect, inconspicuous view of the incoming guests. The familiar, intent look that dawned in Charles' eyes hinted that he was waiting for someone who never came...

At that very moment, the orchestra struck a dramatic tarantella. As the violins reached a crescendo, a breeze rustled through the trees, and though it was a warm night I shivered...

As if like magic, the French doors swung open. The chattering stopped as all eyes were riveted toward the stunning, graceful frame of a woman, outlined by the chandelier's light cast behind her. As she stepped out of the shadow, I heard Charles' sigh of delight. I knew why. The goddess of a woman was clad in a dress of stunning material that must have been silk spun by the most dedicated and talented seamstress into a cloud of red and gold. And pinned to the strap of her dress was a lone, perfect white daisy.

The woman elegantly weaved her way through the crowd of awestruck guests. I cannot say she walked, as that term would not do her justice. It was more as if she floated, her gold shoes barely touching the ground. Before I knew it, her white hand was clasped through Charles' brown one, and the two were dancing with such grace and synchronism that I was certain that it was not their first time...

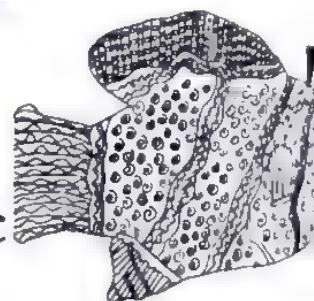

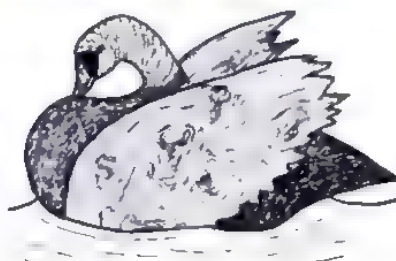

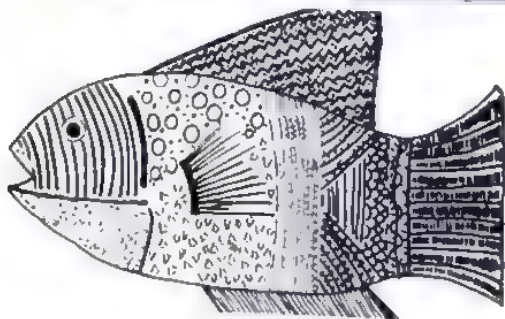

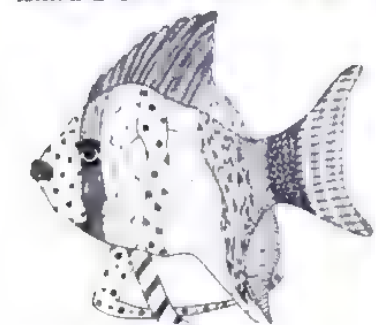

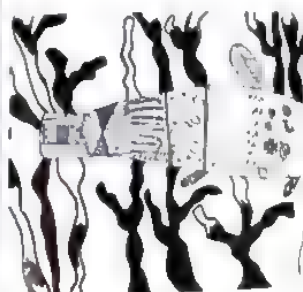

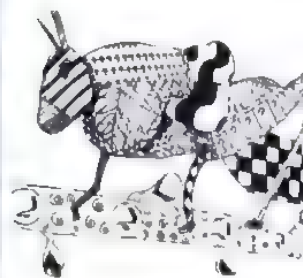

Later that evening, I spotted Charles and the apparition in red sitting under that very same tree, speaking earnestly. I am not certain why, but I walked toward them in order to hear a bit of their conversation. Perhaps I wanted to know what a goddess' voice sounded like. I was not disappointed. Her voice was as musical and whispery as I had imagined it. She and Charles talked for a short time. And like that, she disappeared into the shadows.

We stood for a moment without speaking. I think Charles knew that I had been there all along, but he did not seem to care.

"Why did you let her go, Charles?" I asked.

"I was afraid. I knew that I didn't deserve her. We all get what we deserve someday, old sport," Charles sighed.

I watched him walk off, a lone figure in a white suit. I suddenly felt a sense of light-headedness. I was certain that in my half-drunken state, I had but imagined the entire night. I turned to walk away, and my foot brushed against the lone, wilted, white daisy that lay on the crushed green grass before me.

the jogs, by Helen Arceyut-Frixione

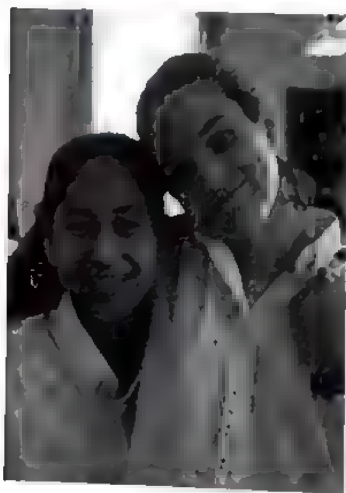

And he jogs,
 he reads on his feet
 his shoes wear down
 there is a continuous slapping on what keeps carrying him on here, to there, to everywhere.
 And he jogs,
 he does what he does best
 but he jogs his life away.
 He sees so many things
 and just bolts clear
 just some other place... just steers clear
 And he jogs,
 past pastures hidden underskirts of dew
 into rough condensed areas where he will cough up his sorrows
 but he is determined, on he goes.
 And he jogs,
 he is so wise having seen about... everything
 even the sun can never beat him at his own pace
 but he never waits for the sun to rise
 from what appears to be an eternal sleep.
 And he jogs,
 people do not compare him to a lost soul
 trying to find his way.
 "He is not an addict," they say
 he is determination
 he has his own ritual.
 And he jogs
 against his bones, tired of the jolting, turn against him.
 His mind can command but his body cannot obey
 he waits for the first time and watches
 the rising steeds with their chariots of gold he watches and his problems stare him in the face
 he can't run away.
 He watches the silver swans on lake and that is when he is taken to the place his soul has been jogging to.
 He should have run if he wanted to reach this final day
 but as the sky opened its mouth
 he went up the golden stairs
 he walked, savoured every moment, every step,
 but it was only in his time of death,
 that he finally felt at rest

Sorrow

They stared deeply into each other's eyes,
 For them it was the beginning of a new world,
 A world filled with love and adventure.
 He stroked her soft face with a warm and gentle hand.
 Slowly he brushed his tender lips against her pale mouth, leaving a tingling sensation.
 It was a passionate kiss filled with grace and mystery.
 It was love at first sight but forever they would stay a couple.
 As she began to close her eyes she whispered softly into his ear.
 She spoke tender words that came from the heart.
 Forever will these kind words stay with him.
 As he watched his loved one drift off into a deep sleep, a tear trickled down his cheek.
 May her kind soul rest in peace.

SHE INVESTMENT

This year, the $he Investment Club had the luck of being able to invest immediately following the stock market crash in October. As a grade, we pooled 1170$ and bought shares in: Toronto-Dominion Bank, Bell Canada Enterprises, Power Financial Corporation, and Bombardier Incorporated. Throughout the year, the value of our portfolio rose steadily to reach a peak of 1540$, giving each Secondary V student over 5$ in dividends. We have enjoyed watching the value of our shares grow while learning all about the stock market, and we wish the same luck to next year's Secondary V class!

BREAST CANCER WALK

On September 12, 1997, Sacred Heart, Villa Maria, ECS, The Study, and Trafalgar held a breast cancer walk. Together, we raised $58,000 for new machinery for the research center at McGill. Sacred Heart alone raised $18,000 for this worthy cause.

Does it look like they're having fun yet?!
